NATIONAL LEAGUE 2019–20

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the National League (including National League North and South) was suspended on 16 March 2020. The suspension was to last until at least 3 April 2020. On 31 March the National League was suspended indefinitely. On 9 April all National League clubs were asked to support an ordinary resolution to end the season. On 22 April, with almost 90% of clubs responding and a clear majority in favour of the resolution, the league's board announced that the season was to be ended.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP WINS

Rangers 54, Celtic 51, Aberdeen 4, Hearts 4, Hibernian 4, Dumbarton 2, Dundee 1, Dundee U 1, Kilmarnock 1, Motherwell 1, Third Lanark 1.

The totals for Rangers and Dumbarton each include the shared championship of 1890–91.

Since the formation of the Scottish Football League in 1890, there have been periodic reorganisations of the leagues to allow for expansion, improve competition and commercial aspects of the game. The table below lists the league names by tier and chronology. This table can be used to assist when studying the records.

Tier	Division
1	Scottish League Division I	1890–1939

	SPFL League Two	2013–

In 2013–14 the SPFL introduced play-offs to determine a second promotion/relegation place for the Premiership, Championship and League One.

The team finishing second bottom of the Premiership plays two legs against the team from the Championship that won the eliminator games played between the teams finishing second, third and fourth.

For both the Championship and League One, the team finishing second bottom joins the teams from second, third and fourth places of the lower league in a play-off series of two-legged semi-finals and finals.

In 2014–15 a play-off was introduced for promotion/relegation from League Two. The team finishing bottom of League Two plays two legs against the victors of the eliminator games between the winners of the Highland and Lowland leagues.

INTERNATIONAL DIRECTORY

The directory provides the latest available information on international and club football in the 211 national associations in the six Confederations of FIFA, the world governing body. This includes addresses, foundation dates and team colours. FIFA-recognised internationals played in season 2019–20 (i.e. 8 July 2019 to 5 July 2020) are listed as well as league and cup champions at club level. In Europe, the latest league tables, cup winners and top scorers for the 55 UEFA nations are given, together with all-time league and cup honours. (Key to table symbols used: (C) league champions; [1] Champions League qualifier; [2] Europa League qualifier; * team relegated; *+ team relegated after play-offs; + team not relegated after play-offs.)

The four home nations, England, Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales, are dealt with elsewhere in the Yearbook; but basic details appear in this directory. Gozo is included here for its close links with Maltese football. Northern Cyprus is not a member of FIFA or UEFA and is the subject of an international territorial dispute. Kosovo was granted full membership of both FIFA and UEFA in May 2016 and entered World Cup 2018 qualification in September 2016, followed by participation in the 2019–20 UEFA Nations League and Euro 2020 qualifying. FYR Macedonia's results are now credited to North Macedonia, its new name from February 2019. Swaziland was renamed Eswatini in April 2018.

International match venues are indicated as follows: home (h), away (a), neutral (n); in multi-nation tournaments the host nation is deemed to be playing at home and all others are on neutral territory; where a nation is unable to play a qualifier at home the neutral venue is stated in a note.

There are currently 12 associate members and others who have affiliation to their confederations. The associate members are: AFC: Northern Mariana Islands; CAF: Reunion, Zanzibar; CONCACAF: Bonaire, French Guiana, Guadeloupe, Martinique, Saint-Martin, Sint Maarten; OFC: Kiribati, Niue, Tuvalu. Matches between full members and associate members are indicated with †.

N.B. Final league rankings for clubs tied on points are decided on goal difference unless otherwise stated.

FOOTBALL CLUB CHAPLAINCY

What does a football chaplain do?

It's a question that is often put to the football chaplains by individual fans or by a group of supporters.

The following may prove helpful to anyone who is genuinely interested. The role of a football chaplain is usually a supportive one (though most chaplains are also supporters of their clubs as well).

The injured or out of form star goalscorer; the bereaved player, fan or club official; the bitterly disappointed former youth team member who has learnt that his club is releasing him; the promising midfielder facing a career-threatening operation: the lonely new signing – these are all examples of football folk who have been glad (and appreciative) of the availability of a football club chaplain.

OBITUARIES

Junior Agogo (Born: Accra, Ghana, 1 August 1979. Died: Swiss Cottage, London, August 2019.) Junior Agogo was a pacy striker who signed for Sheffield Wednesday in October 1996, but made little impact during a four-year stay at Hillsborough, playing most of his football out on loan. He subsequently spent two years in the United States where he also developed a second career in modelling. On his return he had a brief spell as a non-contract player with Queens Park Rangers before moving on to Bristol Rovers where his career took off. He led the Pirates' scoring charts in 2004–05 and also enjoyed success with Nottingham Forest, helping them win promotion from League One as runners-up in 2007–08. He won 27 caps for Ghana and was a member of the squad that achieved third place in the African Cup of Nations finals in 2008.

Des Anderson (Born: Edinburgh, 9 January 1938. Died: 17 October 2019.) Des Anderson was a Scotland Schools international and went on to sign senior forms with Hibernian in September 1956. However, he managed just a couple of first-team appearances during a five-year stay at Easter Road before moving south to join Millwall. He enjoyed a couple of seasons of regular action at The Den, then played in the Southern League for a number of clubs including Dartford and Tonbridge.
